EIDER IS

BRAND EIDER

EIDER is a high-end outdoor brand originating from France, established in 1962.

The brand name 'EIDER' is inspired by a species of Arctic bird called the Eider duck. Eider ducks are renowned for their exceptional adaptability and resistance to cold. Their feathers are plump, delicate, and incredibly soft, providing excellent insulation.

EIDER's design philosophy emphasizes the seamless integration of functionality and fashion elements. Since its inception, EIDER has been committed to introducing innovative manufacturing technologies and high-performance fabrics, offering users comfortable, durable, and warm outdoor gear.

Additionally, EIDER has always upheld the outdoor practical aesthetics that prioritize attention to detail. The brand aims to enable every wearer to fully enjoy outdoor activities while expressing their individuality and unique style to the fullest.

 EIDER

CHAMONIX ESPRIT, SINCE 1962

"No demons, no dragons, only breathtaking beauty."

This is the sentiment left behind by the pioneers of modern mountaineering, French climbers Jacques Balmat and Michel-Gabriel Paccard, upon their first ascent of Mont Blanc.

In 1786, mountain climbing had become a popular pursuit, and the snow-covered peak of Mont Blanc was one of the most coveted climbing objectives at the time.

After three years of arduous attempts, Balmat and Paccard formed a mountaineering team. They crossed desolate plains, climbed high mountains, traversed glacier crevasses, and overcame harsh weather and numerous difficulties.

Finally, on August 8, 1786, they achieved the extraordinary feat of being the first humans to reach the summit of Mont Blanc.

The climbing route chosen by Balmat and Paccard was considered an "impossible path" by the guides of that time.

The route they pioneered became one of the classics for climbing Mont Blanc, inspiring subsequent climbers to challenge themselves, explore the unknown, and discover the boundless beauty of nature, life, and self in the ascent from bottom to top.

EIDER's Value, Chamonix Esprit

In 1962, the EIDER brand was born in Chamonix, France, the hometown of Balmat and Paccard, and the starting point of their legendary journey.

Even today, the legend continues.

EIDER defines the spirit of the two conquerors of Mont Blanc, who overcame unknown fears, as the "Chamonix Esprit" (Chamonix Spirit).

Fear is nothing.

"Deep within each person's heart lies a snow-capped Mont Blanc. It exists, whether near or far, only to make climbers understand that even the smallest life possesses the power to overcome fear.

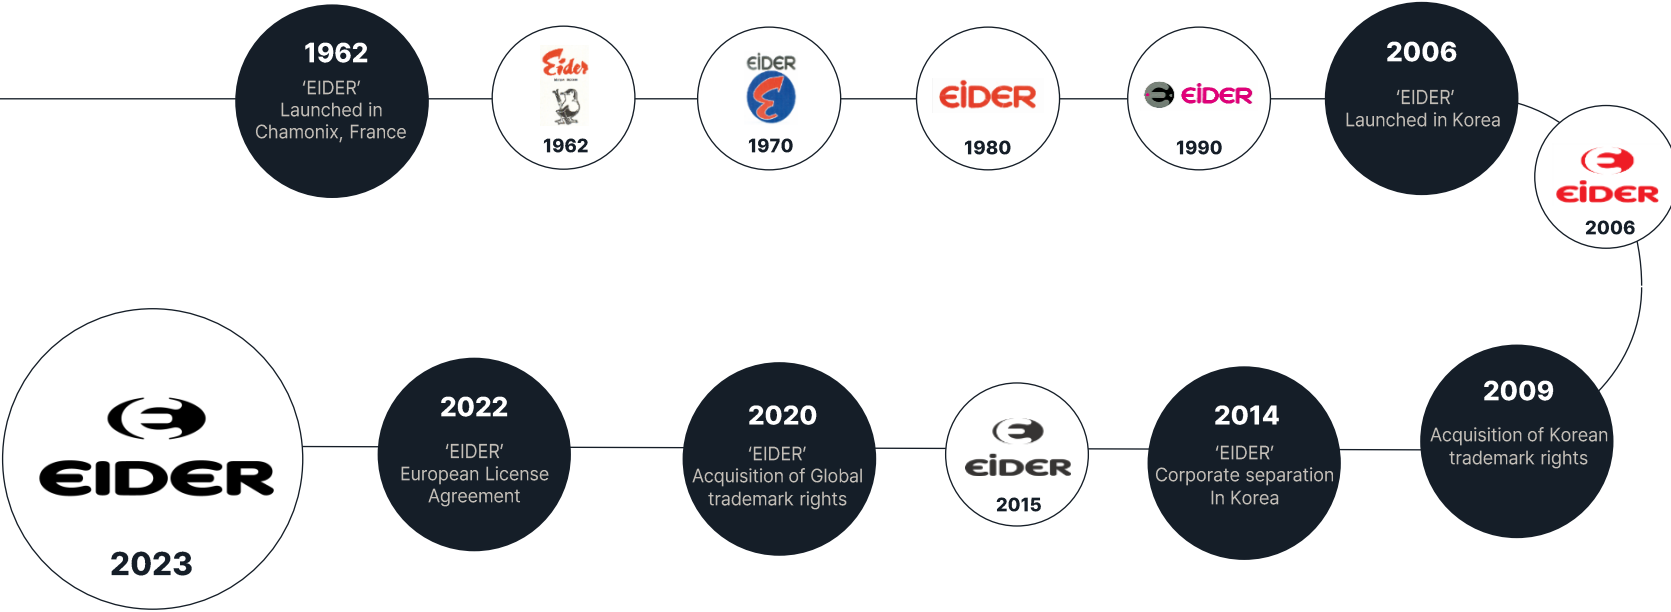

EMBRACE THE CHALLENGE, FEAR IS JUST AN ILLUSION!

Challenge your fear, Fear is nothing!

R&D SHOE RESEARCH LAB

SHOES R&D

K2 KOREA operates a footwear research laboratory, conducting professional analysis on durability, stability, traction, and other performance aspects to develop functional shoes suitable for various outdoor and sports activities.

Before each shoe is officially released to the market, it undergoes multiple mechanical tests and performance evaluations in the laboratory to ensure that the highest quality products are delivered to consumers.

R&D

SELF-DEVELOPED MATERIALS

K2 KOREA insists on independent research and development of functional fabrics and accessories, continuously striving to provide consumers with high-quality outdoor products.

EIDER's unique Virtual Ice Cube 3D functional fabric can react to the body's sweat and moisture, providing a cooling sensation effect

When the body temperature reaches a certain level, the fabric reacts with moisture, causing the color of the print to change, providing a visual confirmation of the cooling sensation effect. The cooling sensation is not just limited to the tactile feel; it is a continuous experience that can be felt when the fabric meets the skin
